“When one is in the town one amuses oneself. When one is in the country one amuses other people” Oscar Wilde

“I’m a hunt saboteur. I go out the night before and shoot the fox” Peter Kay

Here's the perfect stocking-filler for anyone who knows all about hunting, shooting & fishing; or enjoys nothing better than a weekend spent ditch-clearing; or is maybe an expert on chickens, cows, horses or working dogs; or enjoys rambling through our “green and pleasant” – or simply reads about such country matters from the comfort of their town-house sofa ...

“We had to get rid of the kids. One of the dogs was allergic to them” Annie Lewis

“I have nothing against gardening. I just prefer not to be there when it happens.” Tracey McLeod

Here's a collection of witticisms that will entertain and amuse, whether the reader is a knowledgeable countryside lover or whether they prefer to dream about the muddy-side of life from a metropolitan retreat.

“Summer has set in with its usual severity” Samuel Taylor Coleridge
