Nervous flyer – or even too scared to fly at all?

Wanting answers to lots of questions but too afraid to ask?

For anyone who needs to travel by plane for work but is too frightened – or for anyone who dreads their holiday abroad because of the nerve-wracking ordeal of getting there – here is a perfect book and a DVD to help conquer their nerves.

Author, Captain Keith Godfrey, is a highly experienced training pilot who worked for British Airways for twenty-eight years. He is available for interview. (Review copies also available on request.)

Flying without Fear – the book

Captain Keith Godfrey

Captain Keith Godfrey welcomes you on board and takes you through everything that happens from take-off to touch-down in a simple but informative way. In a non-technical but candid style, the author answers more than 250 of the questions that trouble nervous flyers, for example:

- What is turbulence? → How do you take-off? → How does an aircraft stay up? → How do you land a plane? → What happens if an engine stops?
- Why are there so many unusual noises? → What is fuel dumping?
- How good are air traffic controllers?

ISBN: 0-9542828-0-9 Paperback 122 pages Illustrated £8.99

Flying without Fear – the DVD

Captain Keith Godfrey

Designed to give anyone with a fear of flying the confidence to overcome their nerves and to be able to take a flight without panic. Follow a group of people with a genuine fear of flying as they attend a short seminar and then take a flight in a private jet having defeated their fears.

EAN: 5-060090-721396 DVD approx 60 minutes running time £9.99

"This book and DVD explain the safety features and emergency procedures of modern passenger aircraft while answering many frequently asked questions. They also put into context the outstanding safety record of today's aviation. By so doing, this book and the accompanying DVD may well help people to overcome their fear of flying"

Stanley Abrahams (Chief Statistician, Civil Aviation Authority, 1990 - 1999)

Captain Keith Godfrey has over 20,000 flying hours and was, until his retirement from British Airways, a CAA examiner for flight tests and training. Captain Godfrey has been featured on national and regional TV and radio. He is often contacted for comment as an industry expert on air travel. Captain Keith Godfrey is based near Alton in Hampshire.
