These hilarious and somewhat bizarre pictures have been an internet sensation. Found in countless email forwards, blogs and newspaper articles around the world they are now finally available in a new Summersdale book. The Life of Fly brings together everyone's favourite pictures along with new ones that have never been seen before.

Magnus Muhr collects the dead insects from windows and lamps around his house and then gives them a new lease of life with a few simple strokes of a pencil. The book features flies watching TV, queuing for toilets, in prison and even performing the fly version of the Riverdance!
